Dear Friend,

We are Amrutha Preetham and Senthil nathan, Co-founders of Red Soil Nature Play, an Early Childhood Environment, located in Bangalore, India.

This message is regarding the building of the first nature play environment in Bangalore and our financial struggle to accomplish the project. At this juncture, we are crowd funding the building of Red Soil Nature Play and asking your help to support our project. Before we share with you the story and thoughts behind the beginning of Red Soil, we would like to let you know about the need for your support.

Our journey and the need for funds

The creation of Red Soil Nature Play in an urban city with high real estate prices have been a huge impediment in the progress of our project. Until now, we have used our own financial resources towards its development. We weren't able to progress further due to lack of funds. This is an important project as it will ignite a new nature play movement in Urban India and we have been working for over a year on its design, development and planning.

Thus, we are seeking 'help' from the community of Nature/ Forest schools, Nature education pioneers, Early childhood educators, Architects, Permaculturists and Friends. We are seeking a fund from people with a deep interest in nature and forest education. We also need your involvement with us to develop our nature play environment. We are seeking to build a lifelong relationship with you/ your community in every possible way that would enrich our collaborative learning.

About Red Soil Nature Play

Red Soil Nature Play is an environment designed to provide young children with a nurturing space where they can immerse themselves in nature; wonder, explore, discover, connect and experience a sense of place and belonging with the natural surroundings.

The environment is spread across approx. 2 acres of land. We intend to develop it as a self sustainable environment, where water, energy and waste management follow environment friendly practices. Red Soil's unique feature is the interwoven environment where Nature Play areas camouflage with Permaculture.

The component spaces of our project

Nature play areas and Permaculture areas
Nature Play School (for 3-6year old children)
Workshop studio and an Open air celebration space

The importance of NATURE PLAY in Bangalore

* Bangalore is the second fastest-growing major metropolis in India and popularly known as the "Silicon Valley of India". As a growing metropolitan city in a developing country, Bangalore confronts substantial pollution and other logistical and socio-economic problems. This rapid growth has made Bangalore a home to a large number of young parents and children

* The living environments for children in the city are inconsiderate and do not cater to serve their basic developmental needs. Play schools and Kindergartens are located in houses with constrained spaces. These house-converted-playschools do not offer natural and open outdoor environments

* Bangalore has become a city of shopping malls, traffic jams, frothing lakes and waterlogged roads. The high real estate prices have shrunk the open playgrounds and green spaces in the city resulting in deprived living environments for its future generation

* The importance of early childhood development and the vital role of natural surroundings are not being recognized in the current educational 'market' and hence a space like Red Soil Nature Play will become a foundation stone in the future of early childhood development in Bangalore, India. ## About the Contribution and Project Timeline

We are raising 150,000 USD to facilitate the building of Red Soil's Nature Play Environment. During the initial year we have spent around 35,000 USD towards land lease, site development and office structure, land regeneration and labour. To progress further, we were looking for financial support from financial institutions. We were unable to get support from them due to the newness of this project. Hence we are looking towards you, for whom this will matter. The money raised through this campaign will be used by us to complete the environment within six months.

We are going to launch our online crowd funding campaign on Indiegogo \(Crowdfunding platform\) in the month of November, 2016. Please join our pre-launch campaign page by signing up here https://www.indiegogo.com/projects/red-soil-nature-play/coming\_soon This will enable us to keep you updated on the launch and progress of our project.
